ADDRESS Adopted by the American Party, ATITS ANNUAL MEETING. June, 1837.

ADDRESS. Called by the passing away of another year to meet the members of the American party in National Council, the oceasion demands a reaffirma-tion of our opinions. We are ready to-day as aforetime to give a reason for the faith that is in us, and as ready to-day as ever before to stand fast by our vows of devotion to our whole coun-try. Neither dismayed by defeat, nor disheart ened by oppositiou-neither discouraged by the past, nor without hope for the future—we meet together both to counsel one with another, and to show to the people of the United States by our presence and our numbers here in open conven tion that as a party we are hopeful and determined as to our future course of action.

The dominant party at the North and the dominant party at the South, by appenls made to sections of country and the passions of the day, are temporarily successful. But a temporary triumph cause of one or many defeats.

convictions of public duty, the result would have been far different. At the North, tens of thoumiscalled Republican party. It was a cruel and miscalled for sacrifice of principle upon the altar of expediency, and one of those sacrifices of principle which, if persisted in, in private life, as is sometimes the ease, in the consideration of subjects of great public moment, would result in common disaster. When patriotism becomes the rule of action and a true love of country points out the path of duty, nothing can excuse the yielding up of that which is right for that which

We do not, however seek to recall anything in the past calculated to wound the feelings of those who were tempted in a moment of despon dency or thoughtlessness to forget their obligations to their country or their associates in princi-

Thousands who left our ranks in November, drawn away by the temporary expedients and passions of the hour, have returned to the fold of the American party. They have been taught in the bitter school of experience that the word of promise may be made to the ear and broken to the hope. Where there was a pledge to secure, and the power to effect a pure ballot-box—the want of which is one of the great evils of the times—and to accomplish which ought to unite the same of the provided and the power to effect a pure ballot-box—the want of which is one of the great evils of the times—and to accomplish which ought to unite the same of the pressure and to accomplish which ought to unite the great majority of wrongs in Utah, the act of the great majority of wrongs in Utah, Thousands who left our ranks in November, constitution and by the laws, were entitled to American people.

In no instance that we can recall to mind have either of the two great organizations opposed the ican party endeavored to secure those wholesome reforms which are essential either to an inteligent or honest exercise of the rights of the Republic, and to every citizen in the Even where an attempt has been Union? made, as in New York, to secure a practical reform under the naturalization laws, so that while the change would not extend the five years' residence previous to naturalization provided by the laws of the United States, it would, neverthe-less, secure a small portion of this limited residence before the alien was alowed to vote, the attempt has failed, by the combined opposition of both the Democratic and Republican parties, who not unfrequently work together at the North to destroy the American organization. And while of those who were distinguished under the condestroy the American organization. And while there has been a neglect to maintain a pure fran chise for white voters, and an open and earnest opposition to all reforms, proposing simply remedial measures for admitted great public evils, there has also been enacted in New York a successful measure looking to such an amendment of the Constitution as would secure a general system of suffrage to the negroes of the State. Thus, in one part of the Union a State Constitution is pened to sustain the question of negro suffrage, while in another part of the Union the alien has had conferred upon him privileges wholly un known to the native-born citizen. To day a foreign pauper or a foreign criminal, driven or banished rom the pest or prison houses of Europe, is made in ture. all things, and regardless of his residence in the country, an equal with the citizen whose service has een life-long, patriotic, and useful in the land of his birth To-morrow, again, States in another see tion of the country become revolutionary in their plans of opposition to the Federal Government, and exhaust their patriotism and labor in measmes of mere speciality and favor for the negro.

We seek to avoid such analomies of legislation in both our Federal and State governments.— Their tendency is neither toward humanity nor mercy. They benefit neither the white nor the black race and, whether well meant or ill meant, result in that spirit of strife and uncharitableness in different States and among different classes of people which the true men of the country cannot tail to deplore.

Higher aims and nobler objects animate the American party. We know of no political differences between the rights of the North and the rights of the South. All are subordinate to the constitution of our common country. The union of the States, the rights of the States, the privileges of the people in the States, and under the Union, is our chief glory and our greatest good.— When differences of opinion come, as come they will, they must be settled, not by crimination and hate, but by reference to that great principle of common right and common protection—THE CONSTIunfortunately again be differences of opinion as to what is granted and what is denied by the constitution, the judiciary of the land, through the authorized courts of the nation, can alone make up and decide the final issue. The constitu-tion and the law must, therefore, at all times and in all places become our rule of action.

Toleration of opinion, the freedom of speech bly to assemble and petition the government for a redress of grievances, are among these specifi a redress of grievances, are among these specin-ed constitutional personal rights, and cannot be abridged except as the obuse of these privileges is restrained by the laws of the land. Equally ex-plicit are the rights of the States over their own territories, and interference with them becomes both a public abuse of power and an act of personal impertinence. If all men in all sections of the country, could realize where their powers commence, and where they cease—if they could understand that they are no more responsible for other men's sins than they are secure in their own self assumed virtues, all would be comparatively

There are many and vitai questions upon which There are many and vital questions upon which the American party can agree, and to these all other subjects should be subordinate. They are, in brief, condensed in the following spirit of our National Platform. We hold, for example, as cardinal maxims of public justice and private duty, to the following rule of faith and actton:

1st. The Federal Union must be maintain

2d. The reserved rights of the States must be 3d. The decisions of the Supreme Court mus

10th. The naturalization laws must be amend 11th. "Squatter Sovereignty" and alien suff rage must be repudiated.
12th. Americans must rule America.

There is nothing here not taught in the Consti-tution of the United States, and nothing here repugnant to the spirit and letter of that instrument of liberty and law. The provision of the Constitemporarily successful. But a temporary triumph is no evidence of permauent success. Nor does a victory secured by passion give evidence of a true attachment to principle. A true soldier will never be disheartened in sustaining a good cause because of one or many defeats. The nine hundred thousand American voters who sustained the American candidates for the two first offices in the gift of the people in November last may enjoy the consciousness of an honest work well meant and well done. They neither counted the cost of defeat nor faltered in the discharge of a great public duty, and had the thousands of men who agreed with them in opinion as to the justice of their principles and the fitness of their candidate acted upon the same convictions of public duty, the result would have above and beyond all other records of political erceds, the platform of the American party. But we cannot shut our eyes to other issue of thousands voted for Mr. Fillmore, while tens which have been forced upon us by the Democratic party, which is not only not what it was in times would secure the election of the candidate of different faces for different parts of the country and different phases to illustrate its many creeds It has involved the government in great difficulty and no man feels secure in the future while thi party is in power. Uunder Democratic Adminis-trations there has been an open violation of law in the Territory of Utah. A social system which would have disgraced the darkest ages, utterly repugnant to civilization, reflecting the highest dishonor upon the government, a festering sore upon the political body, and every day growing from bad to worse, exists and has existed for four years past within the borders of our own government. We condemn this outrage upon morals and humanity, and desire to see the nuisance abated We trace it, however, as one of the natural ills incident to that system of administration which seeks to fill the nation with criminals, pau-pers, and fanatics from the old world. We trace the good men of all parties—there has been eith. public domain, secured by a common treasure and er a criminal indifference to the evil itself or a bold paarticipation in that wrong. So in the promises made at the North to secure a pure regard to the general ownership, and with a lavfranchise through the agency of a registry law ishness of appropriation which shows an utter in-where all could see and know who, under the difference to the just claims and true wants of the

has, in the memoir of Nelson, an episode cou cerning the famed beauty that once enchanted Tracing Nelson through the early stages of his rapid and signal success, the author leads us to the contemplation of his "fatal attachment" to Lady Hamilton—she who was "at first the Aspasia, and afterwards the Herodias of her age." Here is a description of how this wonderful woman emerged from obscurity and blazed on the

LADY HAMILTON'S YOUTH AND FORTUNES.

Her only name was Emma, for her father re mained always unknown. She was one of the children of love, of crime, of mystery, whom nature delights to overwhelm with gifts in compen-sation for the loss of hereditary claims. Her mother was a poor farmer's servant in the county of Chester. Whether she had lost her husband by death, or, like Hagar, had been abandoned by her seducer, she arrived, unknown and reduced to beggary, at a village in Wales, the Switzerland of England. She enried in her arms a fe male infant a few months old. The beauty of both attracted the simple mountaineers of the vil lage of Hawarden; the strangers picked up a livelihood by working for the farmers and glean The marked and noble features of the child served 10 propagate the rumor that her tirth was illustrious and mysterious; she was said to be the daughter of Lord Halifax Nothing afterwards, either in her fortune or education, gave color to the report. At the age of twelve she was received in a neighbor's family as a children's The frequent visits of her master and mistress to London, where they resided in the house of their relative, the celebrated engraver, Boydell, gave her the first id-a of the impression her figure produced on the crowd in public places. vague presentiment of the high fortune to which her beauty would exalt her.

At sixteen she made her escape from Hawarden, a field too obscure and circumscribed for her ex panded dreams, and engaged herself in the household of a respectable tradesman in London. A lady of superior rank, struck by her appearance

Almost without employment, in an opulent family. Emma gave herself up to the perusal of those facinating romances which create an imaginary world for the love or ambition of youthful minds e frequented the theaters, and imbibed their the first inspirations of the genius of dramatic expression, of action, and attitude, which she embodied afterwards in a new art, when she be came the animated statue of beauty and passion Being discharged by her mistress for some house hold negligence, her growing taste for the theater induced her to seek a situation in the family of one of the managers. The irregularity and free dom of that establishment, the constant inter course with actors, mu-icians, and dancers, init ated her in the subordinate mechanism of the dramatic art. She was then in the flower of her youth and the full perfection of her beauty. Her tall and elegant figure equaled in natural grace the studied attitudes of the most practical figur antes Her voice was soft, meliaw, and capabl of expressing deep tragic emotion Her cour tenance endowed with susceptibility as capable and varying as the first feelings of a virgin mind. was, at the time, pensive and dazzling. All who saw her at that period of her life agreed in deseribing her as a resurrection of Psyche. Purity of soul, transparent through the elegance of feature, surrounding her, even in her dependent po sition, with a respect which admiration dare not She spread fire without being entangl ed in the flame herself; her innocence found i afeguard even in the excess of her beauty. Her first fall was not a desceut to vice, but a gli ing into imprudence, arising from a yielding nature. A young countryman of the village of Hawarden, son of the tarmer who had first given an asylum to her mother, was seized by a press gang, and carried in fetters to the fleet at anchor in the Tames. Emma, at the entreaty of the prisoner's sister, accompanied her to the ship, to implore the liberation of her brother. Won by the beauty of the fair suppliant, he listened to her prayers and tears, removed her from her low though honest station, overwhelmed her with shameful luxury, furnished a house for her, sup plied her with masters in every ornamental ac-complishment, baastfully displayed his canquest iu publie, and left her, when the squadron sail ed, exposed without safeguard to new seductions.

One of his friends, bearing a noble name, and possessed of a large fortune, earried off the faith ess Emma to an estate in the country, treated her as his wife, made her the queen of the hunt ing tired of her at the end of the season, left her in London, at the mercy of chance, necessity, and Thrown back from this golden cloud on or from appearance more.

As the pot began to boil we put lime in cach last: the hard pavement of the metropolis, and depre eiated in the eves of her former protectors by the publicity of her adventures, Emma was received by night, and in rags, under the eare of one of those infamous procuresses who earry on the trade of seduction.

Aceident alone preserved her from infamy. The woman who had given her shelter, struck by the natural grace and modesty of her demeanor, and astonished at her overwhelming charms, introdueed her as a natural miraele to a celebrated physician, eminent for his admiration of female This was the well known Dr. Graham. (the inventor of the celestial bed.) a voluptuous and mystical quack, who professed to worship and to possess some profound intelligence respecting the secrets of nature, by which means he had ac unired a suspicious and fantastic reputation. Dr Graham loudly expressed his admiration at the sight of the young orphan, and liberally rewarded house, publicly advertised that he possessed a rare example of the efficacy of his specifies to produce the perfections of life, beauty, and health, in a human being; and called upon the incredulous to come and convince themselves by looking on an animated image of the goddess Hygeia. At the appeal, addressed to licentiousness rather than science, the disciples of Graham erowded myste riously to his amphitheatre. The unfortunate victim of her own charms appeared, elothed in transparent garments, in the costume of a divinity; her covering scarcely concealed her

The pride of the physician and the enthusiasm of the spectators burst forth in loud acclamations. Painting and statuary had never before presented ideal form and enloring equal to this example of living nature. Painters and sculptors vied in rivalry to copy from this divine original. Among them, Romney, one of the leading artists of the day, produced many duplicates of the same lovely countenance. He painted the fair Emma as the goddess of the heathen mythology, and under the attributes of the leading heroines of poetry and the drama. These portraits, being engraved, multiplied throughout Europe the features of the unknown beauty, Romney, like Apelles subdued by Campaspe, became enamored of his model, and carried her off from Graham as an exhaustless treasure of art and fortune. He sold for their weight in gold her portraits, either as the sorce-ress Circe, or as Innocence holding a sensitive plant, and astonished at the motion of the flower. This anonymous publicity at the same time pro tected her modesty. The produce of her attitudes, which she received from Graham and Romney, enabled her to live in London, in the shade of respectable retirement. The celebrated Mad ame Lebran, artist in ordinary to the Queen of France, Marie Antoinette, painted her at this me as a Bacchante, and carried her features over to France A young Englishman, of the il-lustrious house of Warwick - Mr. Greville, nephew to Sir William Hamilton, ambassador at Na--discovered Emmain this obscurity. Passion made him believe in her virtue; he loved and endeavored to seduce her. Whether she desired to redeem the errors of her early life, or preferred an honorable name to a large fortune, she steadily resisted his solicitations, and was only won by a promise of marriage as soon as the objections at the expense of pride, sent for her indigent mother to reside with her, and treated her with respect and kindness in spite of her servile con-

In 1789, after this interval of domestic happiness, eoustantly interrupted by the remoustrances of his relatives, Greville, deprived of his salaries Lamartine's Memoirs of Celebrated Characters of office, and pressed by accumulated debts, hes itated between the necessity and sorrow of easting off the woman he considered his wife. Their mutual grief at the prospect of separation poisoned the last days of their intercourse. At this crisis, Greville's uncle, Sir William Hamilton, arrived in Loudon. He was unmarried, master of a large fortune, and intended his nephew for his heir. But his aristocratic consequence revolted from the idea of acknowledging as his grand nephews the children of a prostitute. He refused either to consent to the marriage of Greville, or to pay his debts; the nephew saw no resource but in the intercession of his mistress. Emma, at his suggestion, attired herself in the garb of her infaney, and in a stuff gown and straw hat, waited upon his uncle. She threw herself at his fect, confessed her fault, shed tears as persuasive as they were genuine, appealed to the tender pledges of her love, and besought Sir William to pardon the father and mother for the sake of the unfortunate children. Her triumph was more signal than she anticipated. The old man fasinated by features and aecents which surpassed all he had ever looked on or listened to, either in he classic master pieces of Athenian statuary, or on the voluptuous boards of the Italiah opera-houses, yielded to the seductions which had en chained his nephew. The same love which he had refused to understand, revenged itself by reducing him to the thraldom of Greville.

The beauty of Emma overpowered him, and, ke one seized by sudden madness, he forgot, fter two or three interviews, his age, his rank, his repugnance to matrimony, and irregular life, the mutual affection long isting between her and her paramour, the living ledges of their love, the scandal infamy of a traffic in female charms; and, finally, purchased the possession of the venal beauty by the dis charge of his nephew's embarrassments. They were privately married in London, and Sir Wil liam has ened back to Naples with his prize leaving his union undeclared. Her beauty duz-zled Italy, as it had previously fascinated England. But the knowledge of her avocation as in the shop, elevated her to a higher position in a model, which could not be concealed, and ru nor of the shameless bargain between the and nephew, preceded her to Naples. The am bassador, to stifle these reports and re-establish his idol, was compelled to the ceremony of a public marriage. Scandal disappered before the rank and resistless charms of the young ambassa She was presented at Court, and at the first glance won the admiration and enthusiastic ttachment of the Queen To say the least, it is generous to believe that Nelson did not know the charming Emma's ante cedents. His spontaneous love arose for Lady Hamilton, to all appearance as distinct a being as ould be conceived from the ragged wanderer of Landon streets, or the woman who sat as model of a Circe or a Biechante. This enchantress ex ercised a stern influence over the conduct of Nel son-so stern, that it left deep and everlasting shadows on the splendid fame of the hero.

From the Savanah News of the 21st inst. A Practical Test of Chinese Sugar-Cane.

Springfield, (GA.,) August 19, 1857. MESSRS. Emirors: Amidst the heated and exing political questions of the day, I have thought would transmit to you the result of a practi al experiment with the Chinese sugar cane. Last spring I purchased one dollar's worth of the seed, and planted it in the early part of March, in rows about four feet apart, and in the drill one and two seed every six inches. My intention was to make furage, having very little confidence in its saccharine qualities; but I was induced to change my purpose, and make an effort to pro eure sirup from it.

Myself and Captain P. H. Stanton selected ten eines, measuring one inch in diameter, and from right to nine feet long, which yielded five quarts Linice: ten more of the same size, which yielded ve quarts of juice; ten more of the same size, which had been cut one day and night, gave the same quantity; and again ten from his patch measuring 178 inches in diameter yielded six quarts, wanting a gill or half pint. We cut all the cane for boiling, irrespective of size or age. We put two hundred gallons of juice in the boiler for the first boiling, and after boiling slowly for ten hours took out twenty gallons of very good sirup. The next day we carried 170 gallons through the same process, only increasing the fire, boiling it in seven hours, and obtained sixteen gallons of superior sirup. This we boiled down a little more, which makes it thicker, and is also better flavored than the first. A third boiling of 136 gallons

poiling being governed in quantity somewhat by the report of ex-Governor Hammond, of South

My seed planted nearly half an acre. No paius and been taken to put the ground in a high state of cultivation, neither was it worked with an eye six gallons of fine sirup which was ground and boiled in two days, pays better than any thing I

The principal reason for this hasty and imper fect sketch is I have heard of some one boiling and failing to make a good article, and who calls it a humbug. My impression is that they do not have not been able to learn how far it has gone boil it sufficiently. If they make more than one gallon out of nine or teu, the sirup will be inferior unless the cane is far superior to what we ground. It should be boiled down until it has the appear ance of the sirup from sugar-cauc when you de-sire to make sugar, and then you will have a fine

The news of the country is interesting and fore-boding to foreign residents. We should be sorry to ereate unnecessary alarm. But certainly a tighter rein will require to be kept over the dependents and under-administrative officers of this government, or a general row with foreign na-tions must ensue. From Mazatlan we learn that the late acts against the United States consul have been followed by a seizure of the captain and crew of the schooner Ada and their precip tate ejectment over the sides of the vessel. We see it stated that when the remaining £100 has been paid up, the shares, £1,000 each, will be eouverted into stock, which will the more readily facilitate operations in the market, and give additional popularity to the undertaking by ing opportunities for purchase beyond the range of those immediately connected with the trade of the Atlantie. The Second Annual Fair of the Kentucky State Agricultural Society.

This interesting occasion commences at Henderson, Ky., on the Ohio River, on the 13th of October next, and is continued five days. Over five thousand dollars are offered in premiums, and the list is so liberally and judiciously arranged as basis. to offer proper encouragement to all the objects of art and industry usually embraced, while all temptations to unwholesome tastes and to immocalities are carefully avoided.

The officers of the Society have long been, and still are, dilligently employed in making all necessary and proper arrangements for the reception of a large number of animals and articles for exhibition, and for the comfortable accommodation of a vast concourse of persons to witness

Every appropriate bulding, of tasteful con struction and ample dimensions, has been erected, and will soon be completed, on the spacious grounds of the Henderson, Hopkins, and Union Agricultural and Mechanical Association, all af ter the plans of President Clay, and all gratuitously placed in the use of the State Society. Extensive hotel arrangements of various kinds are in progress, and the proverbial hospitality of the citizens of Henderson will abound, so that no one need fear the want of comfortable accommoda-

Not only Henderson county, but also all the adjacent region is already in high expectation and hope on the subject, as they look to this occasion to inspect and purchase all new and improved breeds of animals of all sorts, and also all sorts of agricultural and labor-saving machinery, and they are well able and willing to pay liberal prices for all they chose to purchase.

The intelligent stock raisers and enterprising mechanics know well how to avail themselves of this most favorable opportunity to make new acquaintances, and open new markets, and no doubt be on hand in great force. The weather and navigation are both now highly favorable for the shipment of animals and articles, at the close of the National Fair, on to Henderson, iu time for the Fair there. Mr. W. E. Milton, of Louisville, and Messrs Allen & Bell, of Henderson, will gratuitously attend to the shipment and receipt of all such objects, but no responsibility for loss or damage or expense will be incured.

Several hundred gentlemen of great intellience and public spirit, not only from Kentucky, but also from various parts of the United States have been invited to attend, and much eloquent speaking and cordial good feeling will abound. Ex-Governor Powell makes the set speech on the second day of the Fair, and as he is known to take much interest in the occasion, no doubt he will present a rich treat to his hearers, and per haps indicate the policy which the whole State ought to unite in, to promote and secure her industrial interest, the great common interest of the whole Commonwealth.

Extra steamers will run during the Fair, between Evansville and Henderson, connecting with the Indiana Railroads; thus ensuring a conveyance under any probable stage of water.

Mr. William Lennox, the efficient superintendent of the Mechanical Department of the National Fair at Louisville, has been engaged for the State Fair, and will soon put up, in the Power Hall, a steam engine and shafting, suitable for driving machinery of all kinds.

Exhibitors at the St. Louis Fair will find it convenient to eall at the Fair at Henderson, on their return.

Entries may be made with Mr. W. E. Milton, Assistant Secretary, Louisville, at any time prior to the Fair, and he will take charge of small and valuable objects for exhibition. Friendly editors will please republish

For the Commonwealth. An Experiment on the Chinese Sugar Cane (Sorghum Sachariferum) Made at Frankfort, Ky.; (Lat. 381/2° N.) Sept. 5th, 1857 When this experiment was made all the leaves were still green and the seed on the top of the panicle were ripening. notices a letter from Norfolk, in which allusion is made to a colored female servant, named Hessy Kellam, who had grown very melancholy on account of the refusal of her master to permit her to marry. The cause assigned for this refusal was that she had already led to the altar eleven husbands, all of whom she had seen to the grave. This unprecedented propensity for the matrimonial state would seem almost increditable. But the case is unquestionably a true one, and Oscillating steam engine—Commendation, deserves perpetuation amid the archives of Gridge, Wadsworth & Co.

have also been in flames for several days past, and considerable fear is felt for the safety of crops, fences, and other valuable property. We have, however, heard of no material damage thus far. Matters political are the all absorbing subject of conversation. On the 28th ult., the American Convention met at Sacramento, and, after nomi nating a full State ticket, and re endorsing their national platform, adjourned. They unanimously approved of the propriety of paying the State debt, so that resolutions to this effect are now incorporated into the proceedings of all the political conventions which have been held. The settlers throughout the State are extraordinarily zealous, and in many counties have nominated full tick and if they concentrate their strength on any one of the candidates of the other political parties he is almost sure to be elected. In San Francisco the Reform party has nom nated an excellent ticket, composed of men of all political parties, and citizens not only honest and upright, but men thoroughly identified with the interests of the eity and State. There is no doubt of the triumphant election of the ticket. Ex Governor Bigler, U.S. Minister to Chile.

THE CITY-A meeting of the American party of the city and county of San Francisco, was held on Saturday evening, 18th inst., at Schuppert's Saloon, corner of Jackson and Stockton streets. About two hundred persons were present. The meeting was addressed by Bailie Peyton, Esq. A series of resolutions were passed declaring the vitality of the party, and appointing a committee to nominate delegates to the State Convention, and a county ticket, 'if they see fit." The Board of Supervisors, at a meeting on Saturday night, August 1, passed the ordinance granting Messrs. Bensley, Von Smith & Co., the privilege of introducing pure fresh water into the eity, to be brought from Lobos creek. A young man, named Robert S. Williams, was before the last grand jury charged with having embezzled the sum of $6,000 from Mr. J. J. Felt, lumber merchant, No. 5, Stewart street wharf, in whose employ he had been as a clerk. Mr. Felt paid a visit to the Atlantic, some months, since, and returned last June. Upon examining the books, a deficiency of $6,000 was found in his cash account, and Williams, on the the 31st of May, made a written statement to Mr. Felt, that, while he was away, he had carried away and lost by gambling over $6,000, and that $3,000 of it had beeu lost since the 27th of April, losing some times $500 and sometimes $1,000 a night. The grand jury did not find bills for some reason. Mr Felt states that Williams has been guilty of similar defalcations in the Atlantic States. OREGON -Our dates from this Territory are to 22d ult. The constitutional convention is to meet on the 17th inst., at Salem. The general news is unimportant. WESTERN MEXICO-The American consul has been imprisoned at Mazatlan on frivolous pre texts, but the prompt action of other consuls the place procured his release.

CARSON VALLEY-The advance of the overland were entertained of their safety, inasmuch as friendly Indians had reported that they were cut off by the "Snakes" at the "Sink of the Hum. They were, however, detained by short ness of grass. The Indians had been troublesom 8 thy by plundering the emigrants on the Humboldt. A very large immigration is reported.

A Fat Salary.—A New York paper states that Richard Busteed, Esq., counsel to the corporation, receives a regular salary of $10,000 a year; he further receives $8,000 for clerk hire. Besides this, he is entitled to receive his proper fees and taxable costs in all proceedings conducted, prosecuted, or defended by him, from all parties thereto except the corporation. From these salaries, fees, and other advantages of position, it is estimated that the place can be made, without stretching the possessor's conscience unreasonably to pay $40,000 or $50,000 a year.

It is ealied to this Mill, which has taken the first Paratice at the Bourbon County Ky. Fair, in competition with the "Little Giant" and several of the most distinguisted Corn and Cob Mills; and it has come out first best in every other place where it has been exhibited, and stands pre-eminently above every other Mill for the following reasons:

This Mill combines three principles—that of cutting with several cast-steel blades, with that of Crushing and Grinding. It is heavier and stronger, and less liable to break or get out of repair than any other Mill before the public. It is more oasily adjusted, being set coarse or time by a single screw, which may be done by a boy 10 years old. It may be used for cutting and grinding Apples, Furmips, Beets, Rutabagas, and with a smalladditional expense, will cut and grind Corn with Shuck, which can be done by no other mill extant. And finally, it has greater grinding surface, and will grind finer, faster and easier than any other Mill of the same size in nec.

This Mill is furnished complete, with Sweep, Hook and Screws, and any farmer with his augurand axe, can set it up and have it grinding in half au hour.
